

University Lithoprinters, Inc. (ULitho), a long-time leader in the print industry, is excited to announce its merger with Foresight Group. For almost a century, ULitho has served southeast Michigan with high-quality offset print services, comprehensive programming and digital printing for variable personalized programs as well as mail services.

The Foresight Group, established in 1905 and based in Lansing, offers a wide range of print services, including offset and digital, variable data printing, mailing, specialized state-of-the art print finishes, signage and promotional collateral. They bring years of experience that will carry the work of ULitho into the future.

University Lithoprinters' president, Robert McPartlin, welcomes the merger with great expectation for what is to come: "I have been exploring and researching tomorrow's advancements and technology, contemplating how to continue to grow and offer the latest advancements while also being fiscally responsible. After many meetings with Stacey Trzeciak, president of Foresight Group, it made sense to unite our two companies. This not only provides both business's the opportunity for growth, it also affords ULitho immediate access to offerings such as large format, display signage, and store-front capabilities that Foresight Group is already producing."

For existing and new customers, this means expanded services and the latest advancements the print industry has to offer.

"We are honored to bring University Lithoprinters into the Foresight Group family", said Stacey Trzeciak, President of Foresight Group. "Their dedication to high quality products and service is unparalleled. We are excited to offer ULitho customers additional products and technologies to further support their needs. We are continuing with the same team, craftsmanship, and care you know—continuing to work with passion, pride, and attention to your needs. Thank you for your continued trust and partnership. I am excited for this new chapter, and even more excited to continue building the future together."

Looking forward, ULitho and Foresight Group are ready to start the next chapter together. With a similar management philosophy and excellent reputation on both sides of the table, we look forward to the future with great excitement and energy as we continue to serve our clients.

This merger is effective immediately with production locations remaining unchanged.
